

Hawkyard went on to remove both opening batsman. Bowlers work well in pairs and his partner in crime, Shaw, bowled Lockwood's number 3 batsman to leave them reeling on 30 for 3. Bridge skipper Oldfield then made the decision to bring Bob Moorhouse on first change. Moorhouse responded by getting the team a wicket in just his second over and Lockwood only added 6 runs for the fourth wicket.

The opposition then did well to recover from 36 for 4. A partnership of 55 between Dawson and H.Lee got them to 91 for 4. A cluster of wickets then fell, leaving Lockwood looking at a low total with the score on 98 for 7.

The ABCC camp must have already had half an eye on the Lumb Cup final. Cricket is rarely that predictable, though. The Lockwood tail stung the Bridge, as their number-nine batsman added 44 runs before being dismissed. A frustrated Bridge captain, Oldfield, then threw the ball to Bob Moorhouse to clean up the tail and he duly obliged, claiming the last two Lockwood wickets and ending the innings on 201.

Hawkyard was expensive but took wickets, finishing with 4-74 from his 21 overs. The pick of the bowlers was easily Bob Moorhouse who ended up with match figures of 3 for 16 from just 7 overs. Lockwood did well to recover from 98 for 7 but still only managed three boundaries in their 55 overs in the middle.

With just two wickets left the momentum was now with Lockwood and the Bridge needed something special to get them into the first ever Lumb Cup final. They needed to find 33 runs from somewhere.

Skipper Oldfield and Haigh battled away, taking the singles when they were available and scoring a few twos and threes here and there. The ability of these two batsmen to stick around frustrated the Lockwood bowlers. Armitage Bridge failed to get the ball to the boundary at all - suggesting that the Lockwood fielders were good in the deep or that the outfield was slow.

Haigh managed to score five runs in one scoring shot, which remains a rare achievement in cricket to this day. Five runs can be scored by a batsman in one of only two ways, either by hitting an obstruction inside the boundary that is not a fielder - a tree or a helmet for example - or picking such a gap in the field that the batsmen are able to run five. A difficult task for even the greatest batsmen.

You would have had to be there to be 100% sure how Haigh picked up those five runs. They proved to be vital runs as ABCC managed to pick up the required runs for victory. Twenty-three extras were bowled by Lockwood, a crucial factor in helping the Bridge over the line. ABCC progressed from a tough and close encounter in the semi-final and advanced to the final to become the first ever winners of the Lumb Cup - and the rest is history.
