

When Birstall Cricket Club's regular scorer, Paul Binns, had to stay at home to study for his examinations the officials were left in a quandary as to who could fill the gap. However, their problem was soon solved when 10-year-old Philip N. Haley, son of Birstall star Ken Haley, offered to do the job.

Philip, who attends Staincliffe Church of England School, followed his father wherever he played and now, instead of counting in his head the many runs his father scores, he can jot them down in the scoring book.

A keen sportsman, he already has his own cricket outfit and practises regularly. A keen all-round athlete, Philip also has a passion for football, and other sports.

With his love for sport showing so much in his younger years he could well prove to be "a chip off the old block."
