

HOSTING FINALS

Duncan Hall on Walton Street

During the Second World War, Walton Street was a prison. Today it's surrounded by mills and factories – quite blocked in in fact. Pulmans, the iron people, used to have one of the mills. We've got good relations with all our neighbours.

It's a very urban and Yorkshire setting. And we're now on the Halifax League rota for hosting Parish Cup finals. Sadly, the old wooden pavilion burnt down in a fire in 1984.
