

LIFELONG LOYALTY

Ken Wilson on his involvement

I started playing for Triangle when I was 15 and finished in 1980 at the age of 58.

My father, William, was involved at the club. I would come down to watch the cricket and end up helping the groundsman, walking round with the mower or such like.

At the age of 15 I played for the juniors, and I never left the club during my career.

Today I'm a trustee of the club, which means I help look after the money.