

PETER GREEN

Like all local cricket clubs, Honley are indebted to the tireless groundsman and his assistants. Peter Green is the man charged with producing quality pitches at Far End Lane.

(And note the roller's nickname... 'Jack' Messenger would be proud!)

The groundsman and his helpers have to execute various tasks on matchday – before, during and after the game.

In hot weather, seeing to the ground can be a hot and tiring business.

Green was also a stalwart of the Honley side. In 1982, after playing 27 years, scoring over 4,000 runs and appearing in three previous finals for Honley, he was a member of the club's first Sykes Cup-winning team.

He also shared in a club record partnership.
