

George Harrison

Club President and Chairman in 1989

HOWZ THAT . . ? Former county councillor Garth Pratt (right) puts the finishing touches to a tree-planting scheme aimed at improving the appearance of Almondbury cricket ground.

Mr Pratt was vice-chairman of the county's environment committee which, before the county council's abolition in April, gave the cricket club £750 towards the tree-planting scheme.
