

‘MRS CRICKET’

Ann Greenwood on becoming involved

I became involved at the club in 2003 when my son was 14. He played for the juniors, I came to watch and I gradually became involved. My husband is also involved.

I started to help with the teas and also joined the committee. In the past I would prepare the teas but my colleagues Margaret and Joan do this now, and I just help out on the day.

In recent years I've acquired the nickname 'Mrs Cricket'. I think it's because people ask me all kinds of questions and I help out where I can.

I'm now responsible for child welfare at the club. It's a big issue generally in cricket at the moment. We are a well organised club; everyone plays a role and helps out and no-one is left on their own.
