THE PRESENTATION OF THE CUP.

In the evening the members of the two teams, together with their friends, assembled in the large room at the Queen Hotel, for the purpose of witnessing the presentation of the cup.

Mr. H. J. Quarantley, who was received with applause, said the first thing he had to mention was to thank the chairman for the very kind remarks he had made with regard to the Marden team and himself.

It should be remarked that it was a difficult matter to say with which team he sympathized most, the winners or the losers, for the game was so close that to an impartial spectator it looked as if Jack were as good as his master. He said he sympathized with Marden, and hoped that if they stuck together, and played up as well as they had done the year previous, they would probably have the pleasure the following year of receiving the cup.
