Farmland

Holmbridge is surrounded on one side by picturesque farmland, allowing it to remain overtly rural despite the nearby residential area.

Ground

Surrounded on all sides by trees and houses, the ground is very pretty. The TV series Last of the Summer Wine once filmed on location at the ground.

St. David's Church

The bond between the cricket club and the church was at one time so strong that the club was not allowed to play cricket after 6pm. This is no longer the case, but the church is still a friendly near neighbour.

Housing

Overlooked by residential housing, Holmbridge's ground can be seen clearly from the many windows. This stands as testament to the close social links the club has with the local community.

Pitch & Outfield

Holmbridge is renowned for its short boundaries – at one point in history 'local rules' applied.

Sightscreen

The surrounding low wall is painted white to act as a 'sightscreen'.
