

BUILDING BLOCKS

Dave Sutton on the new pavilion

Originally the pavilion was further round the boundary. Our new pavilion incorporates a room – the tea room – that used to be a top-storey flat! It was going spare at a local caravan park so we towed it back here.

It was rotting away so I said we'd have it! A few lads helped me and when we got it back here we joined it up with the changing rooms. I hope you can't tell the pavilion incorporates two separate buildings!

The new pavilion

We put a new roof on over the two parts of the pavilion recently. I did the job with the help of a retired joiner. I'll turn my hand to anything! I'm not so good at the theory but I enjoy the practical side of things.

In a previous life I was an engineer! We had to do it ourselves because we didn't have the money to employ others. We've now got changing rooms, toilets and a tea room, and also more plans for the future.
